

The Hopping Candle and the Martian Dog

Once upon a time, a dog on Mars found a hopping candle. When he caught it, he tripped and he burned his paw. He went to the Martian doctor and after he got out of the doctor's office, he chased the hopping candle again. They went into the Martian forest. A saber-tooth Martian tiger chased them. When they got out of the forest, the dog went to dog school. They played around the fire. When he sat down, his bottom got burned. He went to the Martian lake and put his bottom in it and smoke was coming out of the water.

He went home and one of his friends came over. They were cooking and his friend got burnt on the tail. After this, they decided to take a trip to New York. They got caught by the dog catcher. So when they got to the pound, they slipped out of the dog cages and they went off to explore. They found the hopping candle! They chased him around and then a man caught the candle and blew it out because it was about to blow up a tire!

They the two dogs saw two more hopping candles so they split up to go find them. When one of them found his candle, his back got burnt. Then the candles blew up two cars. Because the Martian dogs blew out the candles forever, they became Superheroes!
